

DecisionPoint

Modernizing advanced imaging prior authorization

With a focus on leveraging digital solutions to improve efficiency and the prior authorization experience for health plans and large provider groups, Magellan has partnered with Stanson Health, a Premier Company, to offer DecisionPoint, an industry-leading automated prior authorization solution.

On average, medical staff spend two business days per week on prior authorization.¹ Through automation of the process, DecisionPoint reduces the work involved in obtaining approvals. Providers receive clinical decision support and authorizations at the point of care, and reporting tools give payers valuable data on practice patterns. By reducing providers' workloads and enabling faster and more appropriate decisions at the time an image is ordered, DecisionPoint improves outcomes while enhancing payer-provider relationships.

Evidence-based clinical guidelines—

Embedded within Stanson's award-winning user interface, Magellan's comprehensive guidelines form the foundation of DecisionPoint and help reduce variation in care when followed.

Automated prior authorization—

DecisionPoint analyzes the clinical information against Magellan's guidelines. Clinically appropriate requests are automatically approved and posted in the EHR, and approval IDs are automatically loaded to the record.

Real-time alerts—Providers are guided directly in the EHR via alerts in response to key workflow events, such as ordering an advanced imaging study. Rules-based programming leverages EHR data, locating all relevant patient clinical information and citing appropriate Magellan clinical guidelines.

Comprehensive analytics—Provider data on acceptance and rejection of recommendations informs discussions regarding cost-effective, high-quality care, and determines the effectiveness of alerts, minimizing abrasion.

Enhanced member experience—Member leaves appointment with a clear plan of action.
