

July is BIPOC Mental Health Awareness Month

Get Rooted: A board game to nourish what grounds you

For many Black, Indigenous and People of Color (BIPOC), mind and body wellness are deeply rooted in culture and community. By prioritizing self-care and nourishing your body with intention, you support your mental wellbeing, honor your roots and inspire future generations.

Purpose

Explore how daily choices and culture can nourish or “uproot” your mental wellbeing. Play solo or with a group.

What you’ll need

- A six-sided die
- A small game piece that represents each player’s culture or identity (like a bead, charm or other meaningful item)

How to play

1. Place your game piece on “The root.” Roll the die to see who goes first—the highest roll starts.
2. On your turn, roll the die and move forward that number of spaces. If you land on a red, green or yellow space, follow the instructions:

Green: “Rooted Choice”

Positive actions that support mental wellbeing and cultural pride.

Red: “Uprooted Moment”

Habits or situations that disrupt balance or disconnect you from what grounds you.

Yellow: “Grounding Practice”

Activities that invite reflection—complete before your next turn.

If playing solo, reflect on each space—consider journaling or connecting with the message.

3. The first to reach the end wins. If solo, celebrate your journey of reconnecting with your roots, identity and wellbeing.
